Hello 2009!

Ah...a new year, new hopes to bring to fruition and new horizons to conquer. While 2008 brought its challenges, it also gave birth to possibilities. As economic struggles and rising gas prices made dents in wallets and bank accounts across the country, citizens banded together and voted to re-invent America once more. 2009 promises change! Change is the corner stone of this country and as always Americans are ready to see what lies around the next corner, battle wounds forgotten, courage intact. We move forward.

At Cafe Nostimo, we can't belabor 2008 too much, after all, it was January 21st, 2008 that Cafe Nostimo opened for business. What a day that was! For those of you who joined us on our first day....thank you for your patience, faith, and continued support. With the help of our wonderful staff we worked out the kinks of day one, assessed our battle wounds and opened for day two. And all was well.

The Zottos Family: Dean, Nancy, Nico, & Mojo

As we approach the beginning of our second year, 365 days later, kinks gone, battle wounds forgotten, we continue to enjoy and appreciate each and every one of you! It's you who have made 2008 a great year for us. All of us at Cafe Nostimo thank you for your patronage and continued support. We have enjoyed getting to know you in 2008 and look forward to getting to know more of you in 2009!

Let's toast to 2009, with hope and promise for what lies ahead in the new year. As we did in '08, we will be dedicated in '09 to offering you Deliciously Greek! cuisine... and you just never know what may lie around the corner but you can be sure that it will be nostimo! To all of you epharisto (Thank You), The Zottos Family

GREEK MUSE OF MUSIC

One of the nine Muses, Euterpe (u-ter-pee) was the goddess of music, lyrical poetry and dance.

Her name means 'giver of much delight' and is derived from the Greek words eu (good, well) and terpien (delight or to please).

Euterpe is typically depicted with the double flute. Along with her sisters, daughters of Zeus and Mnemosyn, the nice goddesses are the muses of inspiration.
